Debate Team Has Splendid Record

Although the debate season is not over, the Morrhead team has already made a record of which only one university would be proud. The Morrhead debaters have participated in two large tournaments besides engaging in several debates on their regular schedule.

The Morrhead team did their best work in the recent tournament in South Carolina. Debating in a meet in which over thirty colleges had teams, the Morrhead team were given second place and if they had won only one more of the three debates that they lost, would have had the right to debate the tournament winner for the championship. They did not get to meet the champions at all in the tourney and if they had, might have taken first honors.

People may wonder how a small college like Morrhead can produce such successful teams. The answer is brief and very much to the point. Work. The debaters start their labors as soon as the subject is announced and work on it daily until they finally know all there is to know about the facts in the case. Of course, we are trying to minimize the forensic skill of the college team, but their knowledge of the subject has helped them to win their present high standing.

We congratulate the members of the team who made such a splendid showing in South Carolina. We also congratulate those members of the squad who did not get into the group of states, college students who are victorious since they did their bit in preparing the team for competitive work. We must also felicitate Dr. Lloyd who is assisting in his efforts and who produces a winning team each year.

Stop Being So Gallible

There have been volumes written praising the fault-finder. However, solely on the grounds that the critic is just and based on something having at least the faintest semblance of truth. Recently a virtual undercurrent has been circulating rumors in connection with the administration of the school. All proved to be unfounded, as everyone now knows. Yet, there remains the startling and embarrassing fact that our campus is in a group of states, college students who are supposed to be the future intellectual guides and leaders of eastern Kentucky, who have all the attributes in regard to gullibility, of a very ignorant person. It is to be hoped that the future story of the eastern section of our state will not be laden to listen to a grouch who thinks everything is wrong simply because he has never put to work or can't get a workship.

Keep America Out Of The War

The god of war is again raising his head in the region of central Europe and European diplomats will have difficulty in putting him down again. France says that Hitler has violated the Locarno Pact in placing troops in the Rhineland and talks of a preventative war against Germany. The League of Nations says France is afraid the League will "work against her"; and that Germany will not be represented at the opening session of the League Council in London. The people of the other nations of central Europe have announced that they will back France in the event of war.

What the situation is tense and war threatening to break out at a moment's notice, it behooves the United States to take measures to keep out of the conflict. The only way this country can keep from being drawn into the conflict is to maintain a policy of strict neutrality. The people of America do not want war. We are emerging from the most disastrous depression in our history and we do want to have another huge war dead placed on our shoulders and thousands of our countrymen buried in the battlefields of Europe.

Some Random Quotes:

President Rabb: "Pahers send their sons to college or they don't go to college or because they didn't."

Dr. Terrell, sociology: "It isn't often that married people are faced with the problem of illegitimate children."

Prof. Senff, history: "Edward IV was a good fool. He believed in love, women, and song. When people objected, he cut out singing."

Prof. Bradley, English: "There should be an insecticide for freshmen."

Dr. Lloyd, history: "Queen Anne had seventeen children. None survived, but at least she did her best for England."

Dr. Extrem, English: "Lab (in Dear Brutus) was a fairy—in the Elizabethan sense."

Prof. Horton, music: "Music tries to save—providing you have one."

Dr. Miller, education: "Usefulness is the greatest of virtues—but we must be practical and get a I we can—The scientists are all wrong about it, isn't that right Mr. X?"

Prof. Robinson, English: "Some people should have been born on April the first; the freshmen would have been so confused, the senior who thinks he will revolutionize the world, and the blond who thinks the boy prefer her type."

Dr. Black, physics: "My exams are a concentration of highly refined thought caused by classroom evaporation of work and protection against intellectual saturation."

Prof. Humphrey, English: "Tomorrow we will take the life of Joseph Conrad. Please come prepared."

Dr. Hoke, education: "Any mechanism hard to manage is usually feminine." "My jokes are my bread and butter."

"Cuh-uh," sighed a student, half-asleep, "that who likes stale bread and butter?"

Famous last words: "Ow, I am only joking." With apologies to professors and Harry Lowman.

COLLEGE THEATRE

"Three Kings and an Queen." The Universal comedy-drama which opens at the College Theatre Sunday is May Robson at her best. As the wealthy old maid, eccentric, crabbed and yet filled with an acid humor, this bright star registers a subtle and true translation from lonely distance to a blasty sort of contentment, only to have this happy period of her life interrupted when she is kidnapped by gangsters.

"Things go from bad to worse with Baxter, until his wife, Mona Barry, deserts him. When things look blackest, Baxter's old friends return to his aid and save him from a life of crime."

The bery of sparkling new tunes which features "King of Burlesque" were composed by Jimmy McHugh and Ted Koehler. The story, an original by Vina Delmar, was adapted to the screen by Gene Markey and also by Delmar.

Extensive Program Of Athletics Planned For County Tourney Starts Monday

Fourteen Teams Entered In Intramural Basketball Meet

Representatives of thirteen counties of Kentucky and of the out-of-state group are preparing for the County Basketball Tournament scheduled to start Monday afternoon at four o'clock in the College gymnasium.

Pike and Floyd blast the lid off at the appointed hour with Rowan and Boyd tabbed to rip each other at seven in the evening. Morgan and Perry are billed for the night cap at eight. Other first round battles will be staged Tuesday. The quarter and semi-finals Wednesday and Thursday respectively. The quints that come through to the finals will be given till the following Monday to prepare for the grand finale booked to begin at seven-thirty o'clock in the evening.

There has always been a great deal of interest shown in the tourney heretofore and this year will be no exception if one can judge by the amount of talk and preparation. Carter, Rowan, and Boyd are conceded to have the best and toughest (especially the latter) aggression with Pike and Lawrence offering some stiff opposition in both fields.

THERE'S POISON IVY IN THOSE HILLS!

With spring comes the matter of to roam and there's no place much safer than our own Kentucky hill country. Along with the urge to tramp comes the desire to pick flowers and shrubs. While this is not the only way to "take" poison ivy, it is the most direct method.

Poison ivy looks so much like harmless ivy that unless you know that the former has but three leaves and the latter five, it won't be easy to mistake one for the other.

While many people are apparently immune to this type of infection, it is true that a person may become immune to one contact and susceptible to the next. Also, poison ivy is rare spread from person to person, though it spreads easily from one part of the body to another.

The symptoms are itching, pain, inflammation of the skin, swelling blisters, and sometimes pus formation.

Treatment for mild cases is very simple. Strong laundry soap and hot water is the handiest home remedy and thus bathing exposed parts of the skin after every hike in the woods is a good preventive measure. At

Male spectators were forbidden to witness the intra-mural struggle between the town damels and the Alle Young Hall ladies by Miss Troschel as the girls tournament got underway Tuesday evening in the gym.

The Women's Physical Ed Director was sponsor, general manager, referee, and booster. And she carried out the last office with much alacrity and precision.

"I'm sure that the reason for this collaring of Morehead's swains at the entrance was to keep them from viewing the uncovered lower appendages of the participants."

Boys, there have been opinions but now it is a settled fact that the girls have something to hide, unshapely hips—calves to the uninitiated—knock-knees, or what?

One of the most thrilling miles ever staged on a Jackson, Mississippi court, Murray noosed out the quint from Western 28 to 26 to establish themselves as the S. I. A. A. line of the hardwood.

Western had previously defeated the Thorobreds in the finale of the K. I. A. C. tourney held at Bowling Green.

Sign of a conscientious referee. One "Boo" after another.

Brady Back, sports editor of the ASHLAND DAILY INDEPENDENT, when asked if he was going to attend the regional tourney held at Morehead is reported to have replied: "Yes, even though it were shaggy at Betty Lane, I would go 'disguise'."

Lawrence "Erl" Carter came to Morehead as a highly-jostled football man, and as an average basketball player in the tournament and took high-scoring honors in the three contests.

Members of the teams were: Fields Hall—M. Neblett, R. Borer, A. Allie Young and K. Jackson of the Town team were the outstanding players in the tournament and took high-scoring honors in the three contests.

Carter is looking forward to the coming season with a great deal of concern, and not a little joy. He hopes to show that he can play the same time. He has been seriously on the cork.

T. J. Darmon, Ashland's brassy all-star quarter-back, will be kept for the regional tournament. Apparently T. J. intends to kill two birds with one stone, by viewing the elimination frays and the school at the same time. He has been seriously on the cork.

Fields Hall Takes Intramural Meet

Beat Town By 34 to 30 And Alle Young Hall By 17 to 11

Fields Hall defeated the Town team by a score of 34 to 30 to annex the championship in the Girls' Intra-mural Basketball Tourney Thursday night. The Fields Hall team had previously defeated the Alle Young team by 17 to 11, and the Town team had beat Alle Young by 29 to 16 Saturday afternoon.

M. Neblett of Fields Hall, Borer of Alle Young and K. Jackson of the Town team were the outstanding players in the tournament and took high-scoring honors in the three contests.

Members of the teams were: Fields Hall—M. Neblett, R. Borer, K. Fannin, L. Snyder, M. Hammond, Blackburn, B. Mayfield, V. Harpman, Alle Young—M. Neblett, R. Borer, H. Barker, B. Motley, G. Motley, Town—Jackson, Cornette, Hall, Ridd, Borenback, Thomas, Secrest, Reid.

For Digestion's Sake—smoke Camels

WHEN YOU VISIT the books hour after hour and day after day, your brain and eyes need a week's rest—so often digestion. You find that smoking Camels aids digestion.

Smoking Camels Helps to Ward Off Indigestion Caused by the Breathless Pace of Modern Living

Faster—faster—faster goes the modern rush. People are "always on the go." No wonder indigestion visits so many from time to time. People can't seem to pause for proper eating. But here's one simple step every one can take! Smoke Camels for the sake of the positive beneficial effect Camels have upon digestion. Camels stimulate the normal processes of digestion. And above all, with their matchless blend of costlier tobaccos, Camels bring a superior enjoyment of mildness and flavor.

NO FRESH FOOD HERE—the Marriage during an Arctic expedition... Harold McGrath, leader, says: "Stomach upsets are a constant hazard. I've discovered that 'smoking Camels' at every meal and after help digestion."

"DELIGHTFUL" with meals and after, says Rev. Charles, a figure shaver. "Camels make food taste better and help digestion along. And certainly smoking a Camel is one of the most agreeable experiences."

The tenth grade is planning to give an April Post program in their boneroom April 1. It is adapted from an original short story written by Frances Peratt.

George Young chaperoned a winning party last week for the sophomores.

There are more sophomores in the Minstrel Club than from any other grade. They are very busy studying their parts for the third minstrel show, which will be produced in the future.

Tryouts for the senior play "Growing Pains" were held Monday afternoon at 3:40. The judges were Lucille Casdill, Neville Fines, and Mrs. Morrison. As yet the cast hasn't been selected, although every person tried out for every part.

Carol Patrick, Frances Peratt, and Robert Humphrey have written such good short stories that they are to be sent to the contest sponsored by the SCHOLASTIC magazine.

On Friday afternoon all but a dozen of the senior high students skipped school to go on a hike. Mr. Lapsin had promised them they would be sent to attend the regional tourney but when B. T. R. was defeated he withdrew his promise. They decided to teach him a lesson by skipping. The only punishment so far inflicted is that the teachers have had to make up the work they missed.

The Alumni Club will have charge of the chapel period Wednesday morning.

The third grade class entertained with a surprise party for Katherine Morrison, last Friday afternoon, February 28. She celebrated her second anniversary which fell on Saturday, February 29, but was actually eight years old. The class under the supervision of Miss Moore served a delightful ice cream course.

DR. MILLER TALKS

AT Y. M. C. A. MEET

Dr. Frank Bruno Miller, professor of education, discussed the topic, "The Kiss of Judas Iscariot and the Professional Teacher," at a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. in the lobby of Thompson Hall Monday night.

The substance of Dr. Miller's talk was as follows:

"The person who professes to claim a knowledge of law, medicine or teaching, but does not have it may be licensed to practice his profession but not OF the profession, in it. Often a person is in the profession but not OF the profession."

"Judas Iscariot was IN his group, but he was not OF the group. He was a traitor."

"The professional teacher should be loyal. He should cooperate with organizations seeking to improve professional standards."
